

Christmas Walk in London

Saturday 7th December

Start at 11am under the Marble Arch... not to be confused with the tube station, the actual Marble Arch, by the intersection of Oxford Street and Park Lane.

8.5 miles circular with the opportunity to make shorter at various stages if anyone wishes.

There will also be many opportunities for toilet stops.

What We Shall See...

The magic of St. Christopher's Passage, St. James Street and the surrounding areas...

Then on to Hyde Park and the Serpentine.

After that, it's the elegant Mews decorated in their best Christmas finery... leading on to Elizabeth Street which must rank as one of prettiest in London.

We will have our main break at Sloan Square alongside the dazzling Duke of York square and Kings Road...

For those wishing for value with a view ... meals or drinks go to the top of Peter Jones department store... part of the John Lewis partnership...on Sloan Square.

After lots of dazzlingly displays we go on to Onslow Square and Thurloe Street with their bustling buzz... after this we skirt the glow of the Winter Wonderland on a different route through Hyde Park to where we started at Marble Arch at approximately 6 pm.

Happy Christmas Everyone!

Marcus
